

Who Am We?

When I consider this question, I am struck by its complexity and depth. We are unique. We are proud. The differences between us are the things that make us stronger. We are glimmering stars and when united, we can light up the night sky. Lacking the support and love from others, I am a tree without leaves. The help and guidance offered pushes me to my limits. And the kindness pulls me closer to victory. I am as wise and cunning as a jaguar, and as courageous and caring as a nurturing bear. I have been told that I am strong and creative, but I am stronger with the help of others around me – their gentle hearts tending to my needs. I can't exist without them. The ones closest to me are my friends and family. The bonds that hold us together can never be broken. I am we.